Imagine attending a Major League baseball game almost every day for a week. The one day without a game you’d be in Cooperstown at the Hall of Fame. And furthermore, you’d be traveling with legendary Williams football and track coach Dick Farley. Dick didn’t coach baseball, but his coaching insights cover all sports, and his treasury of colorful athletic stories is equally universal.

A dedicated deluxe motor coach will whisk you from city to city, door to door, working your way up the East Coast from Washington to Boston, seeing games in six ballparks. In Cooperstown there will be a private display of treasured baseball artifacts by a Hall of Fame curator. That night will be spent in Williamstown, where you can look up a former professor or coach.
